

Parents' Bill Of Rights: A series of bills that bring parents into the classroom and puts the needs of kids first in education decisions.

SF 2909, Parents' Rights

This is a simple bill that reinforces the fundamental rights of parents to direct their child's education. Parents aren't an afterthought in a child's education, and this bill will empower them as they guide their child through school. It states school districts must not withhold information about their child's well-being or education. It requires schools to have a regular system for notifying families of activities at school.

SF 2666, Classroom Syllabus Disclosure

This requires teachers to electronically share with parents the syllabus of the class, and to update parents if there are significant changes to the syllabus during the course year. This helps parents plan for their individual needs for additional support or instruction outside the classroom.

SF 2575, Parental Curriculum Review

This short bill requires schools to inform parents of their right to review instructional materials and seek alternative instruction support to suit their child's needs.

SF 2729, Anti-Doxxing

Parents should not be required to publicly disclose their addresses to speak before a school board meeting. This would prevent school boards from stifling debate by subjecting parents to an invasion of personal privacy.

SF 1525, Education Savings Accounts

Giving families more flexibility to support their individual needs in education. With three academic years hit by COVID restrictions, many students are having to use private tutoring to get caught up with learning loss. ESAs give families more flexibility to enhance their public education or look to alternative school choices. They know what they need - this helps them afford it.
